Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 25 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloud and rain in south, cold and brighter in north.

Today:
Occasional rain, some heavy, across southern areas of England and Wales; mild. Dull, dank, chilly and windy zone Northern Ireland towards East Anglia with patchy rain and drizzle. Bright and cold further north, wintry showers Shetland.

Tonight:
Rain moving northeastwards across Northern Ireland, Wales and England, reaching Scotland after midnight. Sleet and snow in north with accumulations and blizzards over hills. Drier elsewhere. Cold in far north.

Sunday:
Cloud and rain moving northeast, with snow becoming increasingly confined to hills. Brighter weather to follow but also some heavy showers.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Often cloudy, with rain at times for many areas, though some sunny spells also likely. Windy on Wednesday with some heavy rain moving east. Mild everywhere.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.